Current Situation

Pakistan is facing a catastrophic flood emergency, with key regions including Buner, Swat, Shangla, Gilgit-Baltistan (GB), and Eastern Punjab experiencing the most severe impacts. The intensity of the monsoon has been heightened by climate change, leading to a 26.5% increase in rainfall in Punjab compared to the previous year.

Official reports from the Disaster Management Authority confirm that 39 districts have been declared calamity-stricken. The current toll stands at 930 fatalities and 1,197 injuries. The floods have also caused significant agricultural and economic damage, with over 6,219 livestock lost. Infrastructure has been severely impacted, with 9,412 houses destroyed or damaged and over 680 schools affected. A total of more than one million people have been evacuated in Punjab alone, with many seeking refuge in camps or with family, while others remain exposed to the elements without shelter.

Ongoing evacuation efforts have relocated more than one million people in Punjab and about 120,000 people in Sindh. Many have found temporary safety in relief camps or with relatives, but a significant number of people are still stranded and without shelter, desperately awaiting for aid.

According to the Pakistan Meteorological Department, no significant weather systems are expected until September 15 2025. However, a westerly wave is projected to affect the upper parts of the country starting on the night of September 15th. Regarding the flood situation, a warning has been issued for the Indus River: the river is expected to reach a "Very High Flood level" at Guddu within the next 48 hours and a "High Flood level" at Sukkur after 48 hours.
